The screenshot displays a Zoom meeting interface. The main content is a presentation slide titled "Natural Greenhouse Effect" and "Human Enhanced Greenhouse Effect". The slide illustrates the process of solar radiation hitting the Earth, which is then re-radiated as heat. In the natural effect, greenhouse gases (CO₂, CH₄, N₂O) in the atmosphere re-radiate heat back to the Earth, preventing it from escaping into space. In the human-enhanced effect, the concentration of these greenhouse gases is increased, leading to more heat being re-radiated back to the Earth, resulting in less heat escaping into space.

The Zoom interface includes a top bar with a timer (40:38), a "Request control" button, and a "Leave" button. A notification bar indicates "You're recording". The "Participants" panel on the right shows a list of attendees, including Sanjay Joshi (Guest), BRIMS IT (Organizer), and several other guests. The bottom of the screen shows the Windows taskbar with the time 2:02 PM on 2/24/2022.
